This novel, originally written in 1947, tells the story of a farmer and his struggle to survive during a famine. The novel won the Gyanpith Award. In 1948 the book was on the New York Times bestseller list. The Farmer novel has been translated into all major languages and continues to be very popular and reprinted to this day. In a foreword written for one of the reprints, John Mackenzie writes, "Having written the novel The Farmer, I decided that I had an idea for another book that would be interesting enough to screen. So I began writing a novel called The Farmer and His Wife, but I soon had to put it aside.
