However, I'm trying to load that ViewController from a subdirectory. So, I tried the following: [self.navigationController pushViewController:[dummyViewController alloc] initWithNibName:@"dummyViewController" bundle:nil] animated:YES]; It loads the nib perfectly, and also the view, but... the view is not managed by the tabBarController. It is stucked in place with the whole screen. Do you have an idea how to avoid this issue? A: Two solutions come to mind. Use the registerNib:forCellReuseIdentifier: method of UINavigationController to associate a UITableViewCell with a view. Use the registerNib:forCellReuseIdentifier:constraint: method of UINavigationController to associate a UIViewController with a view. Both methods take a nib name for the view/ d4474df7b8
